COLONIAL DESIGN.

STRONG, SIMPLE AND CHEAP.

The large area of well in which the plunger works, together with the widely extended inlets to the syphon, and gradually reduced size of same towards the top of syphon, secures for this cistern a certainty of action unknown to many others of this class. The taper of syphon is proportionately designed to give the most easy access of water to down pipe, whilst at the same time it retains it sufficiently to give an instantaneous flush from the commencement, of great power. On the fall of plunger dome the water in well is of sufficient bulk to form a perfect seal, and the water for discharge is taken through inlets of correct form on the underside of well. All the proportions of this cistern are so arranged that it gives the most flush instantaneously, with a minimum residue in cistern after discharge.
