

NATIONAL THEATRE COMPANY

This collection relates to the period spanning the existence of the National Theatre Company, (1956-1984). For records of its predecessor, the Repertory Club (1919-1956) and its successor, the Western Australian Theatre Company (1985-1990), see separate collection listings. Please note, some dates may overlap.

On 11 December 1919, the inaugural meeting of the Repertory Club took place, with a foundation membership of about forty. The Club's first season was presented in 1920 and featured "The Amazons" and "Lady Windermere's Fan".

The Club's first offices were in the basement of the Palace Hotel Chambers, later moving to a room in Commerce Buildings, King Street. In 1921 the Club rented a cottage in Pier Street, Perth, where they stayed for eleven years, after which time the theatre was relocated to the West Australian Buildings in St. George's Terrace. The theatre's first performance in their new premises, consisting of four one act plays, took place 3 August 1933.

In August 1956 the Repertory Club amalgamated with the Company of Four to become the National Theatre Company, operating from offices and theatre in Pier Street. The new season began with "Teahouse of the August moon" on 22 August 1956.

In February 1984 the National Theatre Company liquidated and the Perth Theatre Trust took over the building and the running of the Playhouse Theatre. Operating briefly as Threshold Theatre Company and then XYZ Theatre Company, they adopted the name Western Australian Theatre Company in May 1985, retaining this name until disbanding in July 1990.

n.b. 1979 plans for a new theatre in Perth Cultural Centre transferred to Cameron Chisolm Nicol collection.
