The State Library of Western Australia acknowledges the Whadjuk Noongar people on whose land we are located. We acknowledge the traditional lands of all the Western Australian Aboriginal communities and their cultural practices and knowledge and kinship systems. We recognise that our collections hold traditional cultural knowledge belonging to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities around the country. We support communities to protect the integrity of this information, gathered from their ancestors in the colonial period. We pay our respects to Elders, past and present, who have handed down these systems of practice to each new generation for millennia.

The State Library of Western Australia is a valued cultural institution, recognised for the outstanding services it provides to the people of Western Australia.

Stories from the past, the present, and those yet to unfold, are treasured by the State Library as a vibrant record of our shared history. We strive for our collections to represent the richness and diversity of the Western Australian community and to empower all Western Australians to understand our past, discover new ideas, and to shape the future.

Our responsibility to Aboriginal reconciliation and recognition is a foundation of this Strategic Plan. We acknowledge the colonial origins of our collections and will work with Aboriginal people and communities to reverse and repair harm, identify and sustain cultural knowledge and preserve its integrity and value.

Visitors to our building or online services will find vibrant and welcoming spaces for learning, recreation and enterprise.

Through the use of innovative technologies and services, we will connect with all Western Australians to offer exciting and fulfilling experiences.

Our partnership with local governments for the provision of free public library services gives us unique reach across our vast state. We will work with our partners to develop and deliver services that are informed by community needs, demonstrate significant impact in their local communities, and address the challenges of digital and social inclusion.

Our Strategic Plan for 2023-2027 will guide us as we work to create opportunities for discovery and learning for all Western Australians. Our commitment to creating an invaluable legacy for future generations will result in a strong foundation as we work together towards the State's bicentenary in 2029.
